As part of Harvard's 375th anniversary and in celebration of its close ties to the Boston and Cambridge communities, the University has developed a lecture series that will bring some of Harvard's most renowned thinkers to speak at neighborhood HARVARD libraries. The John Harvard Book Celebration program will reach all 34 library branches in Boston and Cambridge. All events will be free and open to the public.

In addition to the new faculty lecture series, Harvard staff, faculty, and students will take part in library activities aimed at children and youths and other events.

And, in honor of John Harvard's gift of 400 books given to the University in 1638, the University will donate 400 new books to the two cities' library systems.
